

MILL EXECUTIVE DIES IN AUTOMOBILE CRASH

FRENCH, SOVIET BREAK IS SEEN;
OUST RED ENVOYRussian Ambassador Recalled, At Request
Of ParisCHARGE ALLIES
WERE INSULTEDGovernment's Duty Is To Make War, Reynaud
DeclaresPARIS, March 27.—A complete break in diplomatic relations between Soviet Russia and France appears to be foreshadowed in the recall—at French request—of the Russian ambassador to Paris.An official spokesman charged today that France and her ally, Russia, were "insulted" by a telegram which the envoy, Jakob Surits, recently attempted to send to Joseph Stalin, congratulating him on the peace treaty with Finland as a stroke against "British-French warmongers."

Censor Stops Message

A censor stopped the message before it could get on the wire to the Kremlin, it was disclosed in Moscow by an official account of the affair.Even in view of the possibility of a complete rupture, there still was no indication that French military purposes would be served by declaring of a formal state of war between France and the Soviet Union.But if Russia makes a decisive move with Germany in the Balkans that would be another matter, it was said.As for that possibility, the French pointed to the allied force in the Near East and the Allies' understanding with Turkey which holds the key to the Black sea in the Balkans, Turkey, however, is not bound to help the Allies to fight Russia.Surits is expected to leave Paris for Moscow within a few days. His recall means that neither nation will have an ambassador in the other's capital. The French envoy, Paul Emile Naggiar, has been on
"sick leave" for some weeks.

Warning to Russia

The French demand that Russia recall Surits was interpreted as a "warning" to Russia from the new
"win-the-war" government under Paul Reynaud that it intends to take a stiffer diplomatic course in the conflict with Germany. Russia's new found friend, the
The French also are said to be disturbed by a reported increase in Russian espionage.The official spokesman said that normal relations had been maintained with Russia "above all for reasons of practical order."However, he added, France "does not intend to be duped. France intends to make her rights vigorously respected."Increased attention here has been turned on the Near East and possible Russian-German intentions there. Italy's future course also is the subject of close study.The next strain on Paris-Moscow relations may come when—and if—the Soviet Union nominates a successor to Surits. In informed quarters it was considered unlikely that the new French government would approve any replacement.A French official spokesman charged that Surits had "insulted
the allies" in the telegram to Stalin.

NOT an Automobile Assembly Line—but Tanks

At first glance you may think this is an automobile assembly line in Detroit. But this one is a tank and combat car line in a huge French factory.The war chariots are turned out rapidly and are ready to go into battle when they leave the end of the assembly line.MERCY CHAPTER

U. S. ITS SHIRTSo Declares Vandenberg
In Attack On Trade
ProgramWASHINGTON, March 27.—Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) told the senate today that the United States was about to "lose its shirt"
under the reciprocal trade program.
The Michigan senator, in a speech against continuing the administration's trade policy, made
these six contentions:

1. The trade agreements law is unconstitutional.
2. It is "economic dictatorship
come to America."
3. It is driving the country to a basis of uncompensated low tariffs
"which will ultimately wreck us."
4. War and post-war trade competitions involve a multitude of dangerous trade weapons which the agreement law cannot touch.
5. It is not working and cannot work as intended.
6. The alternative is to provide "a concentrated foreign trade authority which can cope with all the external trade penalties which American export increasingly confronts."

Vandenberg said that in a world
at war, or in the "harsh" competitive conditions of post-war readjustment, tariff rates covered by trade agreements were but a minor factor among trade obstacles.Will Not File Suit

was placed at $35,000 in the fire which destroyed a coal tippie and machinery at the Sterling mine of the John M. Hirst Coal Co., two miles west of here, late Tuesday afternoon.Walter Holt, superintendent of the mine, said the fire may have been started by sparks from a freight engine during loading operations in the afternoon.Holt and Walter Carter, a blacksmith, discovered the tippie ablaze at 5:30. The fire spread rapidly, fed by the grease and coal dust
which covered almost everything.The Salineville volunteer fire department was called but was able to confine the flames only to the structure.Machinery Destroyed
The fire consumed coal crushing machinery and auxiliary equipment in the tippie. 25 coal cars and damaged an eight-ton mine hauling motor.Today the fire was still smoldering at the scene.
The gob, or refuse pile, was set ablaze and company officials said that because of this, it is doubtful whether a new tippie could be erected on the old location.The mine has a daily output of 600 tons and is the community's main industry. Employing 200 men, the company has a weekly payroll
of approximately $5,000.John Hileman of Cleveland, general manager of the firm, called a directors' meeting today to discuss the construction of a new tippie.
The old one was partially insured.MASONIC GROUP

LOS ANGELES, March 27.—Expressing determination to "go

W. Hoge, 55, petroleum engineer, said today he would file a second suit naming the film and radio comedian, Bob Burns, a divorce
action against his estranged wife,
Mrs. Millie Hoge, 38.Hoge sued Burns and his studio, Paramount, and others Monday for $70,000 false imprisonment damages, charging he was forced under threats of violence to sign a denial that Burns had stolen the affections of Mrs. Hoge and also a paper releasing the studio from any claims."I have plenty of evidence to back me up when my case gets into court," Hoge said. He did not indicate when a divorce action would be instituted.Mrs. Hoge said she was "utterly amazed" at the damage suit, "because there never was anything between Mr. Burns and me but a casual friendship that existed because he was an old friend of my husband's."Burns, also denying the charges, described the damage action as a "nuisance suit that will have to be disposed of in the usual course."Chautauqua Film

Is Mystery To
Lad's Mother(By Associated Press)
ORRVILLE, March 27.—Mrs. Raymond Horst said today she knew nothing of a new investigation into the bizarre 12-year-old mystery surrounding the disappearance of her son, Melvin.The boy, then 4, vanished from this Wayne county village Dec. 27, 1928, and thousands of clues since have been traced without success."It's all news to me," Mrs. Horst said at her home in nearby Marshallville. "I haven't heard Mr.
Horst speak of it either. Every so often these stories about our boy seem to crop out."Mayor C. Wylie Willaman said
"nothing has developed lately."
Willaman admitted he had been conducting his own inquiry for some time and added:"All I can say at this time is that we know more about the case than has ever been known before." Melvin, known as Orrville's "little boy blue", disappeared while at play.Several days later a 10-year-old neighbor boy told of seeing two persons kidnap Melvin.Both were convicted, only to be acquitted later on retrial when the boy changed his story.One of the theories of the child's disappearance was that he was kidnapped by bootleggers in retaliation against the liquor-raiding activities of Melvin's uncle, Roy Horst,
then Orrville's marshal.THEME SELECTED
FOR MUSIC WEEKSupport Local Group Activities Will Be May 5-11 KeynoteAnnouncement has just been made by C. M. Tremaine, of Washington, secretary of the National Music Week committee, that "support local group activities" will again be the keynote for the 1940 celebration May 5 to 11.Usually the central theme of the annual observance is designated by the national committee, but this year a radical departure was made and this important question was referred to the thousands of local chairmen and workers throughout the country, through a vote taken by mail.The ballot showed an overwhelming preference for the continuance of the 1939 keynote for another year, 88 per cent of all the votes cast recommending such action.
Many other excellent slogans were also suggested, and the best of these will be submitted to vote for adoption in 1941.Tremaine, in commenting on the result, expressed gratification at the size of the vote and its geographical distribution, as practically all the states were represented."The roots of widespread musical culture, whether in appreciation or technical skill and performance, must be planted in fertile soil—in local communities, large and small cities, towns, and even hamlets."Tremaine called attention to the strong letter of approval of Music
week from President Roosevelt, proclamation and public statements issued by 45 governors and 200 mayors in 1939, and to the 300-odd newspaper editorials representing every state but one. These he cited as testifying to the growing recognition by government officials and the press of the value of music
as a national, community and individual asset, as well as an art.Fire Marshal Urges Razing of Old JailLISBON, March 27.—Prosecutor Karl T. Stouffer, back from a trip to Columbus, said today that State Fire Marshal Ray R. Gill informed him yesterday that the fire marshal's office was writing the Colum-biana county commissioners to advise them to complete the raz-ing of the old county jail.The first step in abandoning the jail was taken last month when prisoners were evacuated and removed to Youngstown where they are being cared for by Mahoning county, at the expense of this county.The prosecutor said that Gill recommended that a bond issue for a new jail here be placed on the ballots at the November general election.

CALIFORNIA BOY MAKES GOOD

Contrary to common impression, national elections are not decided by the likes and dislikes of radio listeners. It just happened that Franklin D. Roosevelt found radio to his advantage in 1932 and 1936 and Herbert Hoover and Alfred Landon, respectively, didn't find it that way.

But new techniques in politics, as in everything else, raise new skills. Mr. Hoover, says Prof. Elmer E. Nyberg of New York university, leads all possible presidential candidates at the moment in speech-making on the basis of grading methods used in the university's school of commerce classes.

In contrast with Mr. Hoover's A-plus is President Roosevelt's A-minus. When the latter was rated D, Mr. Landon, who hasn't spoken much since 1936, isn't graded at all. Thomas E. Dewey, however, is graded B-plus, just behind Mr. Roosevelt. Sen. Taft, on the same basis gets C and Paul V. McNutt—"an orator, not a public speaker"—also gets C.

For what it's worth, this is mighty interesting, particularly because Prof. Nyberg, who has been studying speech characteristics of prominent public figures, thinks Mr. Roosevelt is losing ground by scolding too much. This might be argued; he did a lot of scolding when he was A-plus. It does confirm an impression, however, that radio tastes are fickle and that the Fireside Chat hour isn't the drawing power it used to be when it was the biggest thing on the air.

SPRING DRIVE FOR NEUTRALS

Recurrent use of the word "if" in the comments of allied spokesmen on "victory" reveals the growing problem of the neutrals.

This is not a war that one side is sure of winning and, therefore, a war that neutrals can regard dispassionately. It is a war that will be determined by the outcome of things yet undetermined; namely, the policies of neutral governments whose neutrality is not to the advantage of one or both sides.

Sweden and Norway are having to get their teeth into this tough proposition; the allies have opened a drive to cut the ore route from Swedish mines down the Norwegian coast to Germany. Belgium is being forced to wonder whether it should trans-ship German coal to Italy, a question Britain helped the Netherlands to answer recently by stopping coal ships which had cleared its ports.

Roumania is in the press; it has been made known in London that war with Russia would not be too high a price to pay to keep Roumania out of the Communazi clutch. Italy remains in the ticklish position of knowing that the French army is itching to surge across its northern border the instant Premier Mussolini is suspected of believing what he says about loving Germany. The fight for neutrals is—always has been—the momentous strategy of European warfare, infinitely more important than battles which merely have confirmed balances of power already determined by the decisions of statesmen.

STOCKINGS

The New Jersey congressman who advises women constituents that the surest way to bring about Japan's economic collapse is to wear cotton stockings has a big idea by the ears.

In the first place, it is doubtful if silk stocking wearers can be interested in bringing about Japan's economic collapse until a suitable substitute for Japanese silk can be produced in commercial quantities—something said to be imminent, but still not actual.

In the second place, supposing American women cease to be Japan's best customers, thereby causing economic collapse, one may wonder what would be the net gain. It is not to be imagined that the collapse of any nation can happen without worldwide repercussions.

As to saving China by throttling Japan, it may be worth remembering that Europe was to have been saved from Germany by a similar policy, with effects now visible on the front pages of all newspapers. Economic throttling so far hasn't proved to be the solution of anything, except the problem of how to start bigger and better wars.

ALWAYS JUST BEFORE ELECTION

Like geese flying north and sap rising in trees, anti-lynching discussion is a sign of the season. It's election time.

It means that the fancies of politicians are turning lightly to thoughts of fence-building. In the north and west they have their eye on the Negro vote; in the south, it's the white vote, of course.

In 1938, in time for the congressional elections, the subject was reopened and promptly closed as soon as the fences had been repaired. This year an anti-lynching bill passed the house on Jan. 10, it being a rule that such bills always pass the house but will be held up in the senate.

Unfortunately for the cause in which they're interested, Negroes cannot discriminate between their real and bogus friends on the anti-lynching issue. They must assume that those who favor anti-lynching legislation are more interested in the welfare of Negroes than in the support of Negro voters.

Furthermore, they must assume that anti-lynching legislation would do what is claimed for it by spokesmen who may be more interested in delivering blows to state sovereignty than aid to Negroes. It is one of the least admirable situations in national politics and getting no better fast.

King Carol hasn't thought of pouring water on troubled oil. In an upside-down situation it might work.

THE STARS SAY:

For Thursday, March 28

THE ASTRAL influences bearing rule on the events of this day are somewhat doubtful and conflicting. There is danger from some form of sharp practice, deception, trickery or fraud, with writings and papers figuring as contributory agents to trouble. Avoid law, the theft and dubious complications and there is prospect of very definite progress in important relations, as elders, superiors and those in influential places are friendly and ready to lend support.

Those whose birthday it is are under aspects of a conflicting nature, with promise of splendid cooperation from employers, superiors and those of prestige and power. Yet, there are also loopholes for fraud, trickery, loss and litigation, with writings or documents, signatures or misconstructions as elements of contention. With care in this particular, there may be progress, promotion and gratification.

A child born on this day may have excellent talents, with worthy ambitions and fine executive ability. winning approbation of those higher up. Some latent tendencies to trickiness, slyness and want of integrity should be disciplined in early youth.

There'll be a tremendous rush for automobile license plates the next few days, else a large number of autos will go into the garage for an indefinite stay.

Don't throw anything in the wastebasket until you're sure what it is. It may be a new hat.

Two Kinds Of Constipation, Says Doctor; Most Is False

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

CONSTIPATION has been variously defined as the "occupational hazard of chess players," as (by Dr. J. J. Montague) "our common ailment," as the "curse of civilization," as "the brunette's albatross," and as a "tangent of the imagination."

As to the last, I believe it is certainly true that those who worry about constipation at all, worry about it too much. An example comes from a correspondent of our family, who quite regularly keeps us informed about the progress of her husband's chronic complaints.

"I think what the matter with Bert is that he is all dried up. He has taken salts every morning for so many years that he is all dehy-

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

drated and this makes him feel poisoned so he takes a Turkish bath every day or two, so now he is all wrinkled like a prune. I said to him, 'Why don't you go out on a spree and enjoy yourself for once?' but he says, no, he is all poisoned inside from his lifelong constipation. The doctor says his colon has not got a wiggle left in it; it is just worn out from all the salts he has taken and it must have a period of rest, but Bert misses his salts."

This letter indicates to me a whole volume of information about constipation.

True and False

There are at least two kinds of constipation—true and false. False constipation is greatly in the majority. The principal cause of it is well indicated in this letter—the habitual use of cathartics of any kind.

Cathartics simply irritate the inside of the bowel and make the constipated feel that there is foreign matter—present there and that it ought to be gotten rid of by more cathartics. He, therefore, takes more cathartics and then feels more uneasy. It is a true vicious circle. One of the most surprising things in the world is to see how promptly one of these cases becomes entirely normal if he can just be persuaded to leave off his cathartics for a while.

The symptoms of false constipation are well illustrated in this letter because the only symptoms are what the patient thinks of the condition. These people are likely to be morose. They think they are morose because they are constipated. The fact is, they are constipated because they are morose. They start out life with a constipated habit of mind.

Are Dried Out

Then they try to get the poisons out of their system by taking Turkish baths and sweating them out. The wife in this case is a very shrewd observer, and she is perfectly right. These people get dried out internally and externally.

The treatment of false constipation is here's to remove the cause—i.e., habitual use of cathartics and to change the patient's psychology—i.e., persuade him that he is just as normal as other people.

The treatment of true constipation consists in: (1) the use of diet, (2) exercise, (3) rectal surgery, (4) psychotherapy, and (5), very occasionally, drugs.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mrs. C. E. B.: "What is the difference between warts and moles?"

Answer—Both are elevations of the skin. Warts are new growths—benign tumors. Moles are more like an hypertrophy of the skin. Moles are congenital, pigmented and rich in blood vessels. Warts appear at any time in life—not congenital. All moles should be removed—they are potentially dangerous, some more so than others—by surgical removal or electric desiccation. Warts are removed by application of astringents or the use of the x-ray.

D. M. S.: "I am a practical nurse and wish you would answer through your column or give a treatment for itching skin in the elderly."

Answer—Itching skin in the elderly is practically always due to too much soap and water. The skin is atrophic and does not have the natural oil. Rubbing the skin night and morning, and especially before bathing, with toilet lanolin is recommended.

M. E. F.: "What would the symptoms of low blood pressure and anemia be? My blood count is low. Can it be built up?"

Answer: The symptoms of low blood pressure and anemia are weakness, fatigue and shortness of breath. The blood can be built up by iron, liver extract or transfusion.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendenning has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendenning, 235 E. 45th st., New York. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

"SELF MADE GIRL" by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER XX

Linda dawdled over dinner, laughed a lot, Glenn was admiring, full of pretty speeches, but grave. "Wish I had your high spirits," she said.

"HER high spirits! If he only knew the tears she shed, the lonely, dreary hours planning, worrying,—" "You're the one who should be high-spirited. Through college. On your way to Europe. Big future."

"He made a face. 'I suppose so. I'm tired. I'm going to sleep all the way across. I'm going to take you home a little early tonight, and get some sleep now, if you don't mind.'"

"Course not. I have to be up early in the morning, you know."

Then her face had slumped to zero rose to dizzy heights. "Dad wants to meet you. Mind, if we all have dinner somewhere tomorrow night? We'll go somewhere where we can dance, and you can give him a whirl. He thinks he tangles."

"I'd love to." She was almost too tremulous to speak.

"You'll like Dad. Everyone does."

"Yes, I'm sure I will."

"Why, you know him! I forgot, and I guess he did, too! Don't you remember, he drove up all to the open-air symphony one night, when I was in Philadelphia for a week, staying with Aunt Celia."

"No, Glenn. You're mistaken."

"No! Don't you remember? Dad and I drove out to get you, and took you back afterwards, the three of us packed in my old tin-can of a roadster, like sardines."

"But Glenn—"

"You've forgotten. It was ages ago. Right after I started college."

"Oh—Maybe you ARE right. I wasn't you. You must have been away somewhere. It was right after Constance went to France. You're right, after all. Must have been Ruth."

"Oh—"

"Funny, how I got mixed up. That was how it was though, Ruth, and Dad and I."

"I never thought anyone could get Ruth Wagner confused with me. I never thought we looked alike."

"She wouldn't be very flattered. Linda gave a hard little laugh, 'but neither am I. Ruth Wagner! I don't know when I was ever so surprised. To hear you talking about her all the time. I mean—'"

"Talk about her all the time! I only mentioned her name twice."

"Of course she's a very nice girl, and is very bright and all that, but I was surprised that you should like her, I mean, as far as I knew, she never had any other boy friends."

"Don't mind me! I'm not trying to be nasty. I'm just so surprised—"

"She's not a beauty," he said, "but looks aren't everything. She's got brains. Popular, too. Not that that matters."

"Ruth... brains, popular..."

Linda gulped some water and almost choked. IF THAT was his idea of class, then no wonder she wasn't getting very far with him. No wonder that he didn't care for her.

"I think I'd like to go if you don't mind. I'm tired."

"They were silent in the taxi. At her door he said:

"See you tomorrow. About eight?"

"Yes. Goodnight!" She smiled brilliantly. Then she turned, and almost ran to the elevators. She was terribly afraid she was going to cry.

Ruth Wagner—Ruth and her scheming, social-climbing old mother had spoiled her childhood. Rebbel her of the fun she should have had, made her quit high school. Now it was Ruth again, to come between her and Glenn, to spoil her life again!

She spoiled last night, Linda thought angrily, as she began her leisurely dressing for this, their last night together, but she wouldn't spoil this one. I'm going to have a good time if it kills me! If he says that that milk-and-water, dish-faced sissy is the most beautiful woman in the world I'll agree with him. I won't let it get me down. Oh, why is it so hard to be nice when it's someone you love? I can be just LOVELY to everybody I don't care a rap about, and then I go and shriek at Glenn, over nothing—nothing at all! But tonight will be different—I'll MAKE it different.

Glenn had sent flowers—an extravagant sheaf of gardenias, the first he'd ever sent her. Any other time she would have melted with love and tenderness, wanted to keep each leaf just as it came to her. Tonight there was no tenderness, no sentiment in her. She was in a fighting mood. She was girding herself to fight for what she wanted.

Ruthless her fingers separated the white, waxy blossoms. It took a lot of anchoring, and half a box of hairpins to manage the coronet she wanted for her hair. Three or four she pinned on the light jacket of her dress, and the last two or three were left to languish in a water glass on the dresser.

When everything was perfect—every hair in place, every fold of her dress just right, she went downstairs to the hall where the McAllisters, father and son, were waiting.

The two McAllisters, taking little Linda Perry out, in New York. Linda, in a long, formal black lace, stepping into the car with them, rolling off to a smart hotel, to sip cocktails, to dine, and dance and look and be looked at. What would the home folks say to THAT?

It should have been a perfect evening, and in a way it was. Mr. Harrison McAllister even exceeded expectations. Tall, gray-haired, not in the least like Glenn, he was the perfect host, the perfect man of affairs. Beside him even Glenn seemed unsure of himself, a little awkward and young. But she loved him for it. Her heart softened toward him. She forgave him for last night. I made him seem more accessible, more hers.

It was McAllister Senior who did most of the talking, who flattered her, and admired her, and asked her for the first dance. Glenn didn't have much to say. Jealous? No, a boy can't be jealous of his own father, and besides, he didn't look jealous. He just looked bored.

Once, when his father left them to see some friends at another table, Glenn became more his old self again. And when he took her home, and he sighed, and lit a cigarette, and smiled at her in the old way, she knew that the strain, whatever it was, was over. They could be themselves again.

Ruth... brains, popular...

The two McAllisters, taking little Linda Perry out, in New York. Linda, in a long, formal black lace, stepping into the car with them, rolling off to a smart hotel, to sip cocktails, to dine, and dance and look and be looked at. What would the home folks say to THAT?

It should have been a perfect evening, and in a way it was. Mr. Harrison McAllister even exceeded expectations. Tall, gray-haired, not in the least like Glenn, he was the perfect host, the perfect man of affairs. Beside him even Glenn seemed unsure of himself, a little awkward and young. But she loved him for it. Her heart softened toward him. She forgave him for last night. I made him seem more accessible, more hers.

It was McAllister Senior who did most of the talking, who flattered her, and admired her, and asked her for the first dance. Glenn didn't have much to say. Jealous? No, a boy can't be jealous of his own father, and besides, he didn't look jealous. He just looked bored.

Once, when his father left them to see some friends at another table, Glenn became more his old self again. And when he took her home, and he sighed, and lit a cigarette, and smiled at her in the old way, she knew that the strain, whatever it was, was over. They could be themselves again.

Ruth... brains, popular...

Linda gulped some water and almost choked. IF THAT was his idea of class, then no wonder she wasn't getting very far with him. No wonder that he didn't care for her.

"I think I'd like to go if you don't mind. I'm tired."

"They were silent in the taxi. At her door he said:

"See you tomorrow. About eight?"

"Yes. Goodnight!" She smiled brilliantly. Then she turned, and almost ran to the elevators. She was terribly afraid she was going to cry.

Ruth Wagner—Ruth and her scheming, social-climbing old mother had spoiled her childhood. Rebbel her of the fun she should have had, made her quit high school. Now it was Ruth again, to come between her and Glenn, to spoil her life again!

She spoiled last night, Linda thought angrily, as she began her leisurely dressing for this, their last night together, but she wouldn't spoil this one. I'm going to have a good time if it kills me! If he says that that milk-and-water, dish-faced sissy is the most beautiful woman in the world I'll agree with him. I won't let it get me down. Oh, why is it so hard to be nice when it's someone you love? I can be just LOVELY to everybody I don't care a rap about, and then I go and shriek at Glenn, over nothing—nothing at all! But tonight will be different—I'll MAKE it different.

Glenn had sent flowers—an extravagant sheaf of gardenias, the first he'd ever sent her. Any other time she would have melted with love and tenderness, wanted to keep each leaf just as it came to her. Tonight there was no tenderness, no sentiment in her. She was in a fighting mood. She was girding herself to fight for what she wanted.

Ruthless her fingers separated the white, waxy blossoms. It took a lot of anchoring, and half a box of hairpins to manage the coronet she wanted for her hair. Three or four she pinned on the light jacket of her dress, and the last two or three were left to languish in a water glass on the dresser.

When everything was perfect—every hair in place, every fold of her dress just right, she went downstairs to the hall where the McAllisters, father and son, were waiting.

LITTLE CITY TOURNEY ON TAP THIS WEEKEND

KELLEY PLANS FOR 20 TEAMS IN CAGE MEET

Tournament Slated For Friday, Saturday At Memorial

The 1939-40 basketball season comes to a roaring climax in Salem this weekend in the sixth annual Little City tournament, scheduled for the Memorial building Friday and Saturday.

Entries for the tournament will close at midnight tonight although a few, mailed in advance of the deadline, are not expected to be received until tomorrow. Drawings will be made late Thursday and announced Friday.

Out-of-town teams entered in the tournament will be notified when they play in their first games immediately after the drawings are made.

Expects 20 Teams
J. M. Kelley, director of the tournament started in 1933, expects about 20 teams to compete in the two-day cage classic. A large majority of the entries have already been received.

Kelley reported early this week that advance interest in the tournament this year has been greater than it ever has been. Several teams, anxious to compete in the Little City meet, sent in their entries shortly after hearing of plans for the tournament three weeks ago.

Among the teams already entered are Greentown of Stark county, Shearer Grills of East Canton, Decker's Service of North Canton, Dorrance Furniture of Lisbon, Garrod Mfg. Co. of New Waterford, Copley All-Stars of Copley's Corners, Celtics of Butler, Pa., Louisville Fords, Wellsville Olympics, Kent Collegians, Cuyahoga Falls, Parma and Rudibaugh Scholastics of Salem.

The Kent Collegians have been runner-up for the tournament championship the past two years. While Rudibaugh's was the only Salem team entered in the tournament, early today, at least three other local entries are expected.

In addition to Rudibaugh's Salem teams expected to compete in the tourney are City News, Smith Creamery and Cope Nursery.

Champion Missing
The Shastens Sinclairs will not defend the championship they won for two straight years.

The tournament, limited to teams from cities of 10,000 population or less, offers basketball fans of the Salem area an opportunity to see many of the district's leading cage stars in action.

Many of Ohio's outstanding basketball players hail from small towns, and it is around these stars that several teams entered in the Little City tournament are built.

BOWLING RESULTS

The fast-moving Gem Shoe Shine team continued to set the pace as the National League returned to action at the Masonic temple alleys last night after a two-week lull due to the city tournament.

The Gem five remained safely out in front in the league race by sweeping three games from the Moose. The second-place Salem News team was held to two wins by the Masons.

Other National league matches saw W. L. Strain Co. take two of three games with Grate Recreation and Art the Jeweler with three games from Kelly's Service on a forfeit.

The leading Sanitary Enamellers of the Owl League were handed three games on a forfeit by the Old Timers. Only one Owl league match was bowled, the Martin Tire Sales taking two games from the Trades Class in this contest.

First and second place teams of the City Duckpin league won three games apiece as the leading Blue Ribbon Paints lopped Martin Tires and the second-place N. B. O. P. defeated DeRienzo's Spaghetti Shoppe.

WANERS APPEAR TO BE NEARING END OF CAREER

Brothers' Value Important Question Among Pirate Bosses

By RUSSELL NEWLAND
SAN FRANCISCO, March 27.—The Pittsburgh Pirates, in and out of here on a "quickie" series of exhibitions, left one poser which may provide the news behind the baseball news this season.

It deals with the Waner boys, Paul and Lloyd, who taught themselves to hit corn cobs with a broom stick so accurately as Oklahoma school boys that they became one of the great brother acts of baseball.

The question is: Are the Waners nearing the end of their string with the Pirates? The answer, on the face of the present set-up, would appear to be "yes."

One May Leave
It may not happen this season, or next. Then again, sudden departure of either from the club would occasion no great surprise to those familiar with the workings of the team.

They are the sole survivors of an era that saw Pittsburgh win its last National League pennant in 1927. They are now becoming confronted with problem of bucking old man time.

Paul, who joined the Pirates in 1926, will be 37 next month. He is beginning his 15th season. Lloyd, 33, hopped into a Pittsburgh uniform in 1927.

Three times Paul has led the league in hitting. He was top s'ck man of the club with 328 last season. His batting eye is still sharp. But his former speed is only a memory.

Lloyd, smaller than his brother, hit 355 in his first year with the Pirates. Last season he clubbed a weak 285 in 112 games.

Replace Waners
During this spring training, youngsters Bob Elliott and Maurice Van Robays have been performing in the center and right field berths once completely dominated by Lloyd and Paul.

Both these rookies are driving hitters, in the 300 class. Their only drawback is the fact both are right hand batters. The Waners are portersiders. They come in handy when such pitchers as Cincinnati's Walters and Deringer are working.

The elder Waner played so much competitive golf the last two winters he reported for spring training weighing in the neighborhood of 140 pounds. After reaching camp he had to build up weight, which reverses the usual procedure.

Braddock Seconds For Tow Tonight

CLEVELAND, March 27.—James J. Braddock former world's heavyweight boxing champion, will be in Bob Tow's corner tonight for the Washington, D. C. lad's 10-round battle with Buddy Knox of Dayton. They are heavyweights.

Light-heavyweights Jimmy Reeves and Willie Maudine, both of Cleveland and Frankie Mucha of Lorain and a four round go matching middleweights Jimmy Brins of Cleveland and young Tiger Flowers of Canton.

Injuries Gone
COLUMBUS, March 27.—Ohio state's football cripples delighted observers with their recovery after six-week spring training program opened. Capt. James Langhurst's leg injury seemed to have disappeared and Guard Fritz Howard ran around on a leg broken last winter.

Carroll Cadets Capture Championship In Class B

Defeat Baptists, 33-23, To Make Clean Sweep In Cage League's Playoff Series

Making a clean sweep of the playoff series, the Carroll Cadets defeated the Baptists for the second time, 33 to 23, at the Memorial building last night to capture the championship of the city's Class B basketball league.

The Cadets won the first game of the series Monday night, 23 to 13. Led by John Hanzlick and Mike Guappone, the Cadets gained a four-point lead over the Baptists in the second quarter after a low scoring first quarter which ended with the Carroll cagers leading 3 to 2.

At halftime, the Cadets were out in front, 13 to 9.

The Cadets increased their lead from four to seven points in the third quarter and continued to boost their advantage in the fourth period.

Hanzlick paced the scoring for the new Class B champions, ringing up 11 points. Guappone counted nine points. Gene Miller and "Tunney" Snyder shared scoring honors for the Baptists with eight points apiece.

The Cadets advanced to the Class B playoff series by winning the league's second half round robin tournament. The Baptists earned the right to compete in the playoff by winning the first half race.

Gene Sarazen, 38, Has No Thought Of His Retiring
Greensboro, N. C., March 27.—Far from locking forward to retirement, Gene Sarazen at 38 years is mapping out a campaign for at least three more years of tournament golf.

Part of that campaign includes play in the current winter tour. He hasn't finished first yet, but starting the three-postponed second round of the $5,000 Greensboro Open today he was only two shots back of Ben Hogan and Clayton Hearner, leaders last Saturday with 69's.

"There's no reason why, at my age, I shouldn't still be good enough to win," said the stocky squire.

"These fellows—Snead, Hogan, Mangrum—can all hit the ball a mile off the tee and straight, too. 'Still they're not shotmakers. They're not well-grounded in fundamentals."

Gene contends that things have been made too easy for the present-day players, both pros and amateurs.

"I'll withhold my final opinion on these boys until they're past 30," said Sarazen. "If they can keep winning then, I'll be ready to concede they're fine golfers."

Match Game Champs Bowl In A.B.C. Meet

DETROIT, March 27.—The Hermann Undertakers team of St. Louis, national match champions and holders of the all-time record score of 3,797, swing into action tonight at the American Bowling Congress tournament in an effort to wrest the lead from the Ambrosia Brewing team of Chicago.

The St. Louis team never has been able to hit a prize-winning pace in the A. B. C. tourneys.

Teams rolling last night at the Fairgrounds Coliseum failed to displace any of the leaders in the minor events yesterday. Louis Vetter of Cincinnati went into third place in the singles of a 687 count and Bob Rich of Detroit scored 1866 for fourth in the all-events.

Training Camp Briefs

SARASOTA, Fla., March 27.—Dominic, the youngest of the DiMaggios, looked extremely good in his last workout and Red Sox manager Joe Cronin says he can play today against the Dodgers if he wants to. Joe says Dom feels "in the pink" and probably will play.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—Manager Doc Prothro believes that Chuck Klein, slugging outfielder released by the Pirates and signed by the Phillies, may supply the spark that will start the entire team hitting. "He is a great hustler, a fine fellow to have on the club, and I believe he still can hit in a manner that will help us," Prothro said.

TAMPA, Fla.—It is understood that Cincinnati Reds officials, who remain mum, have sent "feelers" to the Pirates in hopes of obtaining Paul Waner, and also that the Reds would part with a sizeable sum for the Yankees' Jake Powell. The condition of most of his players is unsatisfactory to Manager Bill Mcdramatics department by planning special arrangements of "Ava Maria," "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," and several Strauss waltzes.

Since this production is so different from the usual high school play, all the various departments are working to their utmost to make the play really outstanding.

Kechnie, so he sent them through a stiff workout Tuesday.

Tribe Leaves Camp

FORT MYERS, Fla.—The Cleveland Indians bid goodbye to their training camp site here today in a game with Syracuse, of the International league. The game will mark the first appearance of Mel Harder, providing a test for the problem arm that handicapped the Tribe in '35. Paul O'Dea went back to Cleveland for treatment of an eye injury, caused when he was struck by a foul tip. Doctors say his vision is not threatened.

Senators Threatened Life

ORLANDO, Fla.—Making one of the worst spring showings in years, officials of the Washington Senators are ready to do almost anything to give the club some life. With the exception of Dutch Leonard and Buddy Lewis, the report is that Owner Clark Griffith will swap anybody on his club and there is a possibility that a deal with the Detroit Tigers is in the offing.

Giants Whip Yanks

TAMPA, Fla.—The Giants were jubilant today as they faced the Cincinnati Reds—for they had done what they probably won't do again until next spring rolls around—walloped the Yankees. In a winter Haven game yesterday, they outlasted the champs by 14-13 as Hal Schumacher turned in his best pitching performance of the year.

HOUSE PUSHES BUDGET SLASH

Stands Behind Committee; Beats Restoration Move

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 27.—The house stood squarely behind its appropriations committee today and insisted on slashing President Roosevelt's recommendations for wage-hour law administrative expenses.

It defeated, on a teller vote of 115 to 148, an attempt by Rep. Casey (D-Mass.) to restore a $1,035,000 cut in budget estimates for wage-hour salaries for the fiscal year beginning July 1. That would have raised the total for salaries to $5,855,000.

The appropriations committee had asked the house to cut a total of $1,080,000, including the salary item—from the President's total request for $6,185,000 for the wage-hour administration because of a "confused administrative problem" and because the law needed amendments. The proposed total was $1,643,800 more than the current appropriation.

Col. Philip Fleming, wage-hour administrator, was represented in the house today as believing that if congress failed to provide adequate funds for enforcement of the wage-hour law it should be repealed.

Students To Give Play and Operetta

COLUMBIANA, March 27.—An interesting program is planned for Tuesday evening, April 2, at the High school auditorium, when a one-act play and a short operetta will be presented by High school pupils.

A streamlined version of the famous Gilbert and Sullivan opera, "The Mikado," will be directed by Clair King, school music supervisor, with the following cast: The Mikado, James Burkle; Nanki Poo, Fred Kider; Koko, Lloyd Coppock; Poo-Bah, Ted DeWiler; Pish-Tush, Wayne Brubaker; Yum-Yum, Mary Burkle; Pitti-Sing, Pearl Bailey; Peep-Bo, Ruth Mollenkopf; Katisha, Muriel Miller. There will be choruses of Japanese girls, nobles, guards and coolies, 50 being in the operetta.

The Senior class of Columbiana High school has chosen as the class play, "Next Door Neighbors," a comedy in three acts by Leon
